DO YOU REPRINT MATERIAL?

- Do you request and obtain permission to reprint information from the internet, a book, magazine or other published material?
- Do you ask permission to print family information given to you by a family member or another researcher of the same surname?

Remember that all published material should be considered under copyright. This applies to information found on the internet the same as it does to a printed source.

A request for permission to reprint an article found in a periodical or other magazine should be made separately for each article by title and author. In the case of a reproduction of an article on a web page, a full citation to the source web page, the title of the article and the author; along with a statement that the words are being reproduced with the permission of the author (print the full name) and the publisher.

Generally a complete reproduction of an entire magazine article will not be permitted. In the case of the two articles that are reprinted in this quarterly, the authors have requested that the complete article be printed without any editing and the author be given credit for the article. Many authors request a copy of the publication containing the article.

In the case of family information, consider it confidential and do not print it unless you have permission from the family member/s and give them credit for giving you the information. The same applies to material given to you by other researchers of the same family surname. Do respect the privacy of others in your family research.

BIT'S N PIECES

WRESTLING BOOKS

How do you hold a tightly bound book, such as "Instant Information on the Internet", open and type a web address at the same time?

Here is one solution to the problem of wrestling reading material. Have the book spiral bound. It lays flat making it easier to read and both hands are free for typing. It also saves wear and tear on the book.

Try this solution to the problem of holding small books open. Make a clipboard out of two heavy pieces of cardboard glued or taped together. This can then be covered with contact paper or the edges can be bound with tape. Place two large spring-type clips or clothespins on the widest side of the clipboard to hold the pages open. This easy to make clipboard can also be used for other purposes.

Now What Do I Do with All of this Stuff?

By Edward Henry Gaulin, Sr.

A message on the Internet caught my eye the other day and I can't get it out of my mind. A West Coast genealogist had been exchanging information with a researcher in Virginia for some time. Then it happened. Her last message bounced — it couldn't be delivered as the address no longer existed. Fortunately she had received a number of family group sheets from her correspondent which listed a telephone number. When she called the number a man answered, so she asked for her Internet friend and, after a slight hesitation was told, "Oh, Mary Ann passed away three weeks ago." Shocked, but ever gracious, she expressed her sympathy and commented how close this long-distance relationship had become and how it will be missed by her. The husband explained that he was sorry that he couldn't be of any help because he really didn't know much about what his wife was doing with her genealogy.

Perhaps you too have noticed at genealogical gatherings that the average age of the participants is something in excess of 39 years, at least judging by hair color. Most of us really don't have a lot of time to devote to our hobby until after the kids are grown, out of school and we've retired. Then it is no longer a hobby, it becomes an obsession. At some point in our continuous search for dead people, our ancestors, we recognize our own mortality and start to think about a permanent home for our research. If our children or grandchildren appear to be interested, we have it made, but frequently that's not the case. Then what happens to our "stuff"?

Genealogists are usually pretty smart people, until it comes to providing for the distribution of their genealogical assets. The latter, in my case anyway, is a room full of books, journals, magazines, pamphlets, maps, photographs, brochures, newsletters, computer equipment and furniture (desk, chairs, file cabinets, tables, lamps, etc.). The files are loaded with folders bearing family and town names, historic events, and a bunch labeled "MISC." There are miles of computer printouts, hundreds of photocopies, and many "original" vital records. My desk is usually loaded with correspondence awaiting an answer — either mine or from someone else. What should my wife do with all this stuff when I make the ultimate research trip — a personal meeting with my ancestors?

Some of our brighter colleagues say "My college library is getting all my stuff" or it's going to the local public library or to the LDS Family History Library in Salt Lake City or even to the Library of Congress. Well, I hate to be the one to tell you this, but unless you are a celebrity or a huge financial donor, these institutions probably won't want your material — they just don't have room for it.

They would be grateful for a copy of your book, but they might not want the manuscript or research notes. The FHL would appreciate a GEDCOM disk of your database files, but it doesn't want your paper pedigree charts or family group sheets.

So what are your spouse and children to do with all of your stuff? They could really do a couple of dumb things with it if you don't provide guidance to them while you still can. It could be placed in the weekly trash collection, and don't say "They wouldn't do that" because it unfortunately happens all the time. How about a garage sale? Now that is really scary, but it also happens every day. Remember all those old photos and tintypes you have seen in flea markets? How about all those bargain genealogy books you bought because you got to that garage sale before the dealers did? They all came from someplace.

What should you do to insure the sane distribution of your genealogical assets? Perhaps the first thing is to make a record of what you have and then try to keep it current. Show the acquisition date and how much you paid for each item on the inventory sheets. This is especially helpful for artifacts, collections, and books. A photographic record of these items, including those of rare books, could also be useful. Microfilm, microfiche and complete photocopies of books and some records have value. Back issues of many journals, newsletters, and magazines are also in demand by genealogists and therefore have value. However, if you don't tell them what is valuable, your heirs probably won't know.

Now that you have identified your assets, you need to tell someone what you want done with them. Maybe the simplest way is to prepare a letter to your heirs, but remember this lacks the force of law. If they want to, they can toss everything in the trash. A better way to provide for the distribution is in your will, particularly if you also designate sufficient funds to carry out your wishes. Your Last Will and Testament is also where you may make specific bequests: your copy of the 1898 edition of Burkes's Peerage to your FGS Conference roommate or your old roll-top desk to your newest granddaughter. Your wishes can now be enforced by the courts, if necessary.

If you still want to have any of your assets given to your alma mater or a local library or anywhere else, personally contact the agency and discuss the possibility — right now. It won't come as a surprise to them and they should be able to advise you immediately of any conditions of acceptance. If you can support those conditions, ask for a written acknowledgment that can be placed with your will.

Some other thing that you can do right now are to distribute copies of your research among your family, friends, and perhaps, local or national libraries. This is simple if you have progressed to the book-writing stage, but don't be too concerned if you haven't. Many genealogists assemble their pedigree charts, group sheets, pertinent vital records, selected family photographs, and other important documents in notebook form. They write a brief introduction, provide a table of contents, and sometimes an index before having copies made for distribution. Afterwards, the notebook can be kept current with a new year's letter which might include new charts and photos.

Computerized genealogical data can be distributed in the same way on diskette. Sometimes an envelope or jacket is provided in the notebook described above to house data disks. Another way some researchers try to insure the safeguarding of their electronic data is to submit it to the LDS Ancestral File™ or one or more of the other commercial collections. If you don't know how to do this, consult your local genealogical society or Family History Center or even the public library for instructions.

Another thing you can do right now to benefit you heirs is to clean up your files. Eliminate unnecessary correspondence and duplicate copies of records. Toss out all those old printouts you made in 1984 on your Apple IIe computer. Sell all the Genealogical Helper™ magazines you have saved since 1973, because you will never open one of them again and you know it. If you get 50¢ each for them you can have a pretty good dinner. Give away all that old computer software that is taking up room on your bookshelves—it's probably not worth anything anyway. Label your photographs, and diskettes too. I find it a bit morbid, but you may wish to write your epitaph and select your tombstone now to insure future researchers will not encounter some of the same problems that you've had.

If you decide to follow some of these suggestions, when you do eventually meet your ancestors they may thank you for perpetuating their memory. They may also show you where you made some of your mistakes and be able to fill in a few of the blank spaces in your previous research.

Searching For Homestead Papers

by Mary Bullington

Researching for homestead papers is really not that difficult if you know what you're doing. I didn't, so it took me a little longer. Mother had told me that her father had gone into Oklahoma and staked a claim and that he had come back for the family after digging a dugout. I never gave it much thought until I started looking for my genealogical roots. How could I verify that? Where do I start? What did I know? I knew that the claim was near Alva, Oklahoma. I knew that Aunt Elva, who was born in 1893, was with the family when they left Kansas by covered wagon for Oklahoma. From that I concluded that it might have been the opening of the Cherokee Strip that prompted the move.

From the Oklahoma Genealogical Society I learned how to request a "Biographical Research Request Form," from the Oklahoma Historical Society in Oklahoma City. I completed the form with all the information I had: Grandpa's name, place of residence in Oklahoma, dates I wanted researched (1893, 1894), his date of birth and place, his date of marriage and place, his date of death (which I didn't know) and place (I suspected San Diego, CA), Grandma's name, their children's names and prior residences. They also wanted any other information that might be helpful so I put in that bit about them going from Kansas to Oklahoma in a covered wagon and how it rained the first night and flooded their dugout. I know it wasn't pertinent but I put it in anyway.

It didn't take long for them to send me information from the "Federal Tract Books of Oklahoma Territory." Grandpa had indeed filed and paid $14.00 for a "Homestead Application" on December 1, 1893, for 160 acres. I learned that the "Homestead Final Certificate" had been filed on August 2, 1900, in Alva, Oklahoma. They suggested that I write to the National Archives in Washington, D.C. to receive the original case files and get copies of the patents by contacting the Bureau of Land Management in Santa Fe. That turned out to be the best advice I've ever taken.

I drafted two letters: one to the BLM and the other to the NA. From the BLM I received a large photocopy of the hand written page that listed Grandpa's patent with the Section, Township and Range information that I'd received from the Historical Society. A few days later came an oversized envelope with copies of the original documents submitted by my Grandfather, in his own handwriting. It takes very little to excite a researcher, but this time it was a little like finding Lucy in the African Desert. I reached back in time to meet the man I'd never known.

There was a copy of the certificate that he had to post after he'd located on a claim and an affidavit swearing to the fact that he'd not entered the Cherokee Outlet prior to 12 o'clock noon on September 16, 1893. Then came a surprise in the form of the "Homestead Affidavit". He had made a prior claim in Meade County, Kansas on May 27, 1884 and "commuted the same" December 9, 1886. Since Mother was born there in June of 1886, I immediately planned on pursuing that bit of luck.

I read through the rest of the papers which included the Homestead registration and a five page application for a leave of absence from the claim in 1897. Grandfather gave an accounting of his efforts for the past four years which was full of accomplishments as well as disappointments. There was a Certificate of Ownership, a notice of publication in Cleo Chieftain newspaper, Homestead Proof documents, and Testimony of Claimant and Witnesses, as well as receipts for "Payment in Full". I never met my grandfather but what I learned from these documents told me more than I had ever hoped to know.

I then wrote for the documents on the Kansas claim. This time I found he'd taken another leave of absence from that claim to try for a timber claim in Colorado. My total out of pocket expense came to $19.30 for both claims. There is so much to be learned about family from these old documents that I would encourage everyone who suspects a homestead in their family to do a little research. With this information I obtained, I was able to join the First Families of the Twin Territories in Oklahoma.

Permission to reprint this article was given by the author, Mary Bullington, a member of the West Valley Genealogical Society formerly the Sun Cities Genealogical Society. The article first appeared in the Sun Cities Genealogist, Volume XX, Issue No. 1, Spring 1999, Pages 12 & 13.

THIEF A WALKING ARSENAL
Steals $60 Worth of Revolvers From Nelson Brother's Store

The hardware store of Nelson Bros. At Number 6 North Main street, was entered some time last night by a burglar and six or eight revolvers, valued at about $60, were stolen. Possibly other goods were taken, but nothing else has been missed.

An Interesting Fashion Statement

These Suits at $25.00 and $45.00 are beyond question the handsomest ever displayed in Hutchinson, and of these no Hutchinson store can show nearly as close connection with the great fashion center of Chicago and New York.

Here's a Hint But a Hint Only

At $45.00

The leading suits are the seven-eighths fitting jacket, 40 to 45 inches long, with silk Moire collar and jet button trimmings. Same color lining in silk or satin as the cloth, plain mannish coat sleeve. The skirts—most of the suit skirts are plaited, trimmed with tailored self stripes and jet buttons.

At $25.00

The jacket coat is of the seven-eighths fitting, forty-two inches long, trimmed with self tailored straps, soutache braid and jet buttons. HAMBURG LINK TO YOUR ROOTS

Do you think Hamburg might have been your ancestor's emigration port?

The Hamburg Emigration Lists are a data bank which includes the personal data of 5 million people who emigrated via Hamburg from 1850 to 1934. It will be made available for your personal use in April 2000, starting with the years 1890-1893.

This data bank will then grow, on a regular basis, year by year. The first phase will include the data on emigrants from 1890 to 1914. At a later date, the years 1850 to 1934 will be included and all of it will be accessible on the Internet as well. As soon as you've found the name you are looking for you may obtain complete details (where they came from, profession, age, etc.).

Inform yourself via the Internet on Hamburg as the port of emigration, as well as the project itself, at www.hamburg.de/LinkToYourRoots/english/welcome.htm

QUERY

HALLER, BOYDSTON, ROBERSON

Lottie Jane HALLER, daughter of Daniel HALLER and Anastacia BOYDSTON, was born 4 Feb 1881 in Linn Co., KS, died 15 Aug 1967 in Reno Co., KS. She married William D. ROBERSON in Linn Co., KS on 9 Jun 1901.

They lived in Reno Co., for many years, and had ten children, some of whom may still be living. These children are my second cousins (I descend from Anastacia BOYSTON'S brother, James M. BOYDSTON.)

I would like to exchange information with any descendants or researcher who are working on these family lines.
